

Show not Tell Sentences

Keep a reader engrossed in your writing by showing them what is happening instead of telling them.

Sort these sentences into the correct column.

Small, clear drops of water leaked out of his eyes.

He clenched his hands tightly and stamped his feet.

He was bleeding.

The sand was hot.

The soft, yellow grains burnt the soles of his feet.

The firework went off.

A flash of blinding, yellow light lit up the stormy sky.

Warm, red liquid dripped from his hand.

He was angry.

Lightning lit up the sky.

Cold, white flakes floated gently to the ground.

Bright, colourful lights exploded in the night sky.

He was crying.

It was snowing.

Show

Tell

Show	Tell

Show not Tell Sentences

Keep a reader engrossed in your writing by showing them what is happening instead of telling them.

Sort these sentences into the correct column.

Small, clear drops of water leaked out of his eyes.

He clenched his hands tightly and stamped his feet.

He was bleeding.

The sand was hot.

The soft, yellow grains burnt the soles of his feet.

The firework went off.

A flash of blinding, yellow light lit up the stormy sky.

Warm, red liquid dripped from his hand.

He was angry.

Lightning lit up the sky.

Cold, white flakes floated gently to the ground.

Bright, colourful lights exploded in the night sky.

He was crying.

It was snowing.

Show	Tell
Small, clear drops of water leaked out of his eyes.	He was crying.
The soft, yellow grains burnt the soles of his feet.	The sand was hot.
A flash of blinding, yellow light lit up the stormy sky.	Lightning lit up the sky.
Cold, white flakes floated gently to the ground.	It was snowing.
He clenched his hands tightly and stamped his feet.	He was angry.
Warm, red liquid dripped from his hand.	He was bleeding.
Bright, colourful lights exploded in the night sky.	The firework went off.